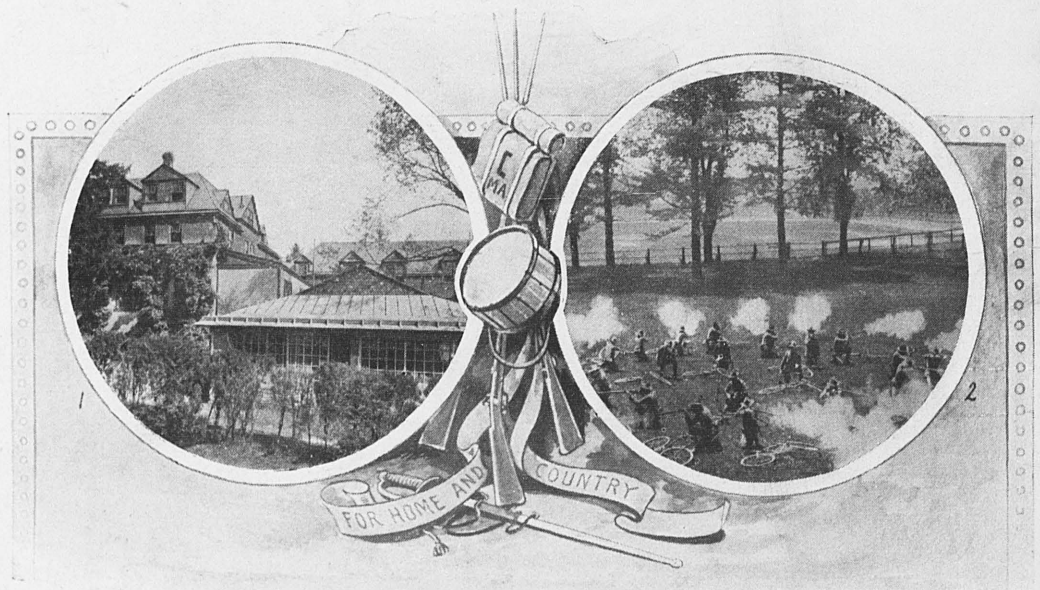
CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY

OGONTZ, PA.
(NEAR PHILADELPHIA)

"AN IDEAL SCHOOL IN AN IDEAL LOCATION"



CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY, on the summit of the Chelten Hills, near Philadelphia, has a location and environment rarely equaled for beauty and healthfulness. The School was founded twenty-eight years ago by the late Rev. Samuel Clements, D. D., and from its opening has had the best class of patronage and has met with unusual success in the training and education of young men and boys. A majority of its graduates enter leading colleges or scientific schools, and for the past six years its annual representation in such institutions has been equal to one-half the attendance of the school.

Among the features that have contributed to the success and popularity of the Academy, the following will at once commend themselves to judicious parents: 1. The attendance is limited to seventy boarding pupils, in order that the classes may not be so large as to render attention to the individual pupil inconvenient or impossible. 2. Ten resident instructors (an average of one for every seven cadets), selected for their ability and experience and for their willingness to take an interest in the welfare and happiness of the pupils. 3. An honest endeavor to train and educate the whole boy rather than to merely prepare him to pass college entrance examinations. 4. The moral tone and influence of the institution.

The next school year begins Wednesday, September 26, 1900.

Parents seeking the right school for a boy are cordially invited to visit the Academy, or to communicate with the Principal. Rooms are assigned in order of application.

MAJOR IRVING A. STEARNS

THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR----BLOCKADES AND COAST DEFENSE.

By SENERO GOMEZ NUNEZ, Captain of Artillery
[Translated from the Spanish.]

THE landing of Spanish forces in the United States is a hypothesis which must be rejected. If Spain had a squadron of the first order she might invest Key West, although even then it would require a bombardment in good earnest to reduce the forts defending the entrance. But this would not be of any advantage, as our forces would be at a distance from the "Key," beyond the range of the guns of the fleet. The naval station might be destroyed and some coal captured, but to reduce the place would require a large amount of ammunition, which would be difficult to replace, and it would not be worth spending it for that purpose.

From these few remarks it may be concluded that Spain's only objective would be the destruction of our commerce, especially to the West Indies, where our traffic is extensive and our prestige great. These losses would injure us, but they would not profit Spain either and would have no influence on the duration of the war. The depredations of the "Alabama" were of no influence on the conclusion of hostilities between the North and South.

THE LINE OF OPERATIONS.

The third point of importance in naval strategy is the line of operations, which in this case is clearly indicated. It would consist in protecting Cuba by means of an oeffnsive fleet, acting as a defensive fleet, as far remore from the coasts as possible; that is to say, this fleet would always have to maintain contact with the bases of operations and be in condition at any time to search for and annihilate any hostile forces that might attempt to enter its waters by forcing a passage. If the passage were forced it would probably be impossible to eject the enemy. If the Spanish fleet should be victorious, it would then be in condition to attempt blockades and bombardments.

On the other hand the Spanish fleet might be defeated, its line broken, its forces demoralized, and then Habana and Matanzas, Yucatan Channel, and the Windward Passage would fall into our hands, and Cuba would cease to be a Spanish colony.

WHAT THE UNITED STATES COULD DO.

The plan of campaign sets forth that the principles of strategy require from the outset the number of ships that will be necessary for the defensive as well as the offensive; it indicates the theories to which they would have to conform and states that the scene of war would be the same for them as for us, but with the advantage in their favor that the United States forces would be a thousand times better situated than the Spanish. It then proceeds to treat of the invasion of Spain.

It states that the invasion of Spain would probably not enter into the plan of campaign, but that no doubt attacks might be made by war ships upon the fortified harbors of Spain, in which case the fire of cruisers of the most modern type would rage in the bays of Biscay and of the Atlantic.

To invade the Peninsula would require many transports to take the troops across the ocean. The long line of communication would have to be protected and the army of Cuba might constitute another obstacle requiring an army to fight it. Nevertheless the invasion would follow if the first attack were crowned with success. The first attack, of course, would be made upon Cuba.

MAJOR FRANK L. McKEE
9th Penna. Vol. Infantry

ATTACK UPON HABANA.

Cuba can be reached easily. The lines of communication are short and can be protected without difficulty, and, moreover, in the very heart of the hostile country we should find thousands of alies. It is a question to be carefully considered whether it will be necessary to make an invasion of the island. Contributions of arms, food, and military supplies sent to the interior by our war ships would weaken the Spanish forces and encourage the Cuban insurgents, so that the military forces required by the United States would be less than an army corps. There is a saying that Napoleon ended in Spain. Well, Spain might end in the Pearl of the Antilles.

CHARACTER OF THE WAR.

Thus the war would from the beginning be of a naval character and the fight would be concluded in a short time. We need not speak of the confidence of our people in this fact; nevertheless we do not want to indulge in exaggerations which would cause disappointment if the conflict should not be short, because there are many things which can not be foreseen, and the Americans should not be put in the same class with the unfortunate French people, who in 1870 shouted: "On to Berlin!" and whose predictions of one month of campaign were ridiculed by every nation.

It is true that the forces we have at our disposal are superior to those of Spain in every class except that of torpedo boats; it is also certain that the auxiliary fleet under our flag is much larger and can be mobilized more readily, and that, leaving valor entirely out of the question, the discipline and training of our Navy are of very high order, because superior intelligence and noble traditions animate our service, and it is equally certain that our facilities for refitting are superior and that we have better resources for meeting the expenses incident to a war. It is further true that our house is better guarded, that we can supply our forces more easily with coal, provisions, and war supplies, and that we have yards for construction and repairs conveniently at hand.

COALING AND REPAIRING.

In the matter of coaling facilities we have an enormous advantage, because the Spanish ships have to rely to a great extent on imports from without. They would have to get coal from friendly nations, who through the obligations of international laws, would have to become neutrals.

The coal depots in Spain would soon become exhausted and the resupply might prove difficult, if it is not entirely prevented by our cruisers on the sea. There would also be great difficulties in the matter of making repairs which, while often necessary in time of peace, become numerous in time of war.

The task of our Navy would be the reduction of Habana, the blockade of Cuba and Puerto Rico, the equipment of the Cuban insurgents, the destruction of Spanish commerce, and the defense of our bases of supplies and other ports. This is work of tremendous magnitude and will require great energy. Naval battles must be fought before Habana will fall into our hands, and to this object we shall be able to devote all the ships of our Navy that are not required for the protection of our coasts.

The catastrophe of the "Maine" occurred on the 15th day of February, 1898, at half past 9 o'clock at night, and this plan of war against Spain, as set forth above, was published two days prior to that date, on February 13, in the Herald. This is one more circumstance in support of the fact that that catastrophe was simply a pretext skilfully utilized by the Americans for launching themselves into the fight, and that the latter had long been decided upon and was one of the secret aspirations of the United States.

But this plan of campaign, as well as many other manifestations of hostility against us, might well have been thoroughly considered by those who were at the head of our affairs, in order to adopt the more rational of the two following propositions:

If we had a squadron that could measure itself with the United States fleet on equal terms—then on to war!

If we did not have such a squadron, nor any resources, nor any support, and if we had no plan and were not able to formulate one—then we should by all means acknowledge this to ourselves and avoid the war.

Was it so very difficult to decide which of these two courses would be best?

The facts which we give further on show that the problem was clear and simple. There could be no doubt as to the fact that we had no squadron to speak of. If with the knowledge and in spite of all this the war was nevertheless necessary for absolutely imperious reasons which are beyond my ken, then we had to enter it with all possible energy, without beating about the bush, and set on foot all offensive means that we could possibly raise.

Nothing but the most vigorous and heroic initiative could keep our national honor intact.

BRONZE MEMORIAL TABLET,

Presented by Major Irving A. Stearns, in Memory of the Officers and Men of the 9th Regiment Infantry, Pa. Vols., who died in the Service of The United States during the Spanish-American War, 1898. 9th Regiment Armory, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 11th, 1900.

BLOCKADES AND PRIVATEERING.

Pasquale Fiore defines blockades as operations of war which consist in surrounding a hostile coast in order to intercept all communication by sea, maintaining an arc around such coast with a number of ships that are really and effectively in condition to prevent by force any ship which might attempt to cross the blockading line from doing so, without exposing themselves to be sunk by the guns of the station vessels.

According to him, therefore, the blockade is the occupation of waters within the jurisdiction of the enemy, which naturally carries with it an exercise of sovereignty which is estimated differently by different writers on international law; for while Hübner, Ortolán, and Hautefeuille admit that the belligerent party acquires that sovereignty when it occupies waters within the jurisdiction of its enemy, others are of opinion that such right is not incontrovertible, because the blockaded coast is almost always in the power of the enemy, who exercises his sovereignty as far as the range of the guns of his ports extends, and that therefore the right of blockade is really practiced on the high seas where the blockading vessels are stationed, and those seas are not subject to any State. Hence the generally accepted opinion is that the blockade is founded on an exigency of war, to which neutrals must submit, although it prejudices them. Gessner, following the opinion of Grotius, also considers blockades a necessity of war which should be confined to cases in which they are absolutely indispensable; and Dudley Field (Outlines of an International Code, art. 891) says that belligerents can only blockade military ports, and only as far as may be necessary to take possession of contraband of war, meaning by "military port" a fortified harbor or one occupied by more troops than are required for the maintenance of internal order. He bases this opinion on the principle that the hardships of a blockade will be effective only in ports belonging to an island or which unite exceptional conditions.

There can be no doubt that the island of Cuba united these conditions, and hence it is that in the United States' plan of campaign, which we have described in the preceding chapter, the blockade played quite an important part, in as far as it relates to the operations of the Americans, as also to the operations of defense against any which the Spanish might undertake, for they realized that, owing to our lack of naval power, the island of Cuba, separated from Spain by a long distance and without direct means for supporting its army and people as a result of its agricultural conditions, could be easily cut off and reduced by starvation, without much effort or bloodshed. This was in pursuance of the theory of humanity under which the Yankees had for a long time been taking shelter to hide their intentions.

But the Americans never imagined that they might be able to establish a blockade of the entire coast of Cuba, because they were far from realizing that our squadron was as deficient as it actually was. At first, therefore, they only announced the blockade of the northern coast comprised between Bahia Honda, Habana, Matanzas, and Cardenas, and only when they had positively ascertained that not all the destroyers were coming over, and that the only ships which we could make immediately available were those of Cervera's division, was the blockade extended to the southern coast, first from Cienfuegos to Santiago de Cuba, and subsequently to the entire island after our squadron had been closed in at Santiago Harbor. After that the blockade at times assumed the character of a veritable farce (juerga). With glasses we could see from the batteries of Habana, among the blockading ships and exercising functions of vigilance and even chasing coasting vessels and carrying orders back and forth, private tugs of the United States Press and pleasure yachts, on board of some of which we could distinguish lady excursionists and almost feel the excitement of champagne.

And in the face of all this, we did not even use the one method of warfare which the enemy feared, privateering, while in the United States, though not under the name of privateers, yet under that of auxiliary vessels, there were in the blockading fleet numerous craft whose functions, as a matter of fact, were identical with those of privateers.

SOME SECRET REASON?

There was, there must have been something, some secret reason which the people suspected at the time and which was, perhaps, the obstacle to our issuing letters of marque and reprisal which, by their moral force alone, would have compelled the enemy to divide his squadron, and in that case, who knows whether our defeat, if we had to suffer it, would not have been less disgraceful?

This something—could we not find out what it was? Could we not ascertain to whom we are indebted for it?

For if there were no obstacles, no embargoes, it was a grave responsibility not bravely to resolve upon privateering.

COLONEL ASHER MINER

Colonel Asher Miner of the 7th Regiment Infantry, N. G. P., was for many years connected with the 9th Regiment, and still takes great interest in its welfare.

Colonel Miner enlisted in Company "D," 9th Regiment, April 12, 1884, was appointed Corporal July 22, 1884, elected Second Lieutenant January 27, 1885; First Lieutenant, July 1, 1887; Captain, July 21, 1888, and resigned October 10, 1890.

While serving with the 9th Regiment, he was prominent as a sharpshooter, was appointed Corporal July 22, 1884, elected Second Lieutenant team in 1888 and 1889, the brigade team having won the match at Mt. Gretna in both years. In 1889 he won the regimental champion shot medal.

May 2, 1895, he was appointed Colonel and General Inspector of Rifle Practice by Governor Hastings. He reorganized the department and greatly increased the efficiency of the National Guard of Pennsylvania in rifle practice.

On the breaking of the Spanish War he was ordered to Mt. Gretna and detailed as ordnance officer, superintending the transfer of all the arms, equipments, and ammunition from the State of Pennsylvania to the U. S. Government.

Colonel Miner assisted in the organization of the provisional regiments of the N. G. P., and was elected and commissioned Colonel of the 7th Regiment Infantry. In September, 1898, he was detailed by Governor Hastings to visit the camp of U. S. Volunteers at Lexington, Ky., then suffering from an epidemic of typhoid fever, and do all in his power for the relief of the Pennsylvania regiments.

In accordance with these instructions he visited the camp and arranged for the furlough of seventy sick and convalescent men of the 5th and 9th Pennsylvania Regiments whom he brought to their homes on a hospital train.

Upon the close of the war and reorganization of the National Guard, Colonel Miner was detailed for duty on the staff of the commander-in-chief, where he is serving at present.

CAPTAIN JAMES CLINTON KENNY

Captain James Clinton Kenny is one of Pennsylvania's typical representative company commanders. He commands to-day one of the best drilled and largest companies in the State, his drill attendance throughout the year averaging 95 per cent. When quite a young man he enlisted in Company "A," June 1, 1890. Showing a studious disposition, after a year and one-half's faithful service, he was appointed Corporal in 1891. February 25, 1892, found him a Sergeant, and in July, 1893, he was appointed Sergeant Major of the Regiment, a position which he filled with great credit. The members of Company "B," recognizing in him the kind of material necessary for a commissioned officer of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, unanimously elected him Second Lieutenant on April 5, 1895. Subsequently several changes occurred in this Company, and on July 1, 1897, he was voted a single silver bar, and when the war broke out with Spain he was one of the first to volunteer his services and was commissioned First Lieutenant of Company "B," 9th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, by Governor Hastings, May 11, 1898.

After the death of Captain Stearns, who commanded the Company, he was recommended by Colonel Dougherty as Captain of the Company and received his commission September 12, 1898. He was mustered out of the service of the U. S. October 29, 1898. After the reorganization of the regiment into the State service, he was elected Captain on March 24, 1899.

Captain Kenny in civil life is the manager of L. C. Dart's Fire Insurance Agency, and has for several years held the secretaryship of the Wilkes-Barre Board of Underwriters. While Captain Kenny was born in Massachusetts, he has resided in the Wyoming Valley since childhood and is very well known in this section, and bids fair to become one of the representative business men of Luzerne County.

MAJOR OLIN FRISBIE HARVEY

Major Olin Frisbie Harvey was formerly the senior surgeon of the 9th Regiment and second senior to Major Weaver of the first brigade. During his many years service in the 9th, although a medical officer, he was indefatigable in his efforts to have the regiment properly quartered, and during the several fairs held by the regiment, he was instrumental in raising a considerable amount towards this project. Pressure of professional duties finally compelled him to sever his connection with the regiment, but his attachment for the command is inseparable.

Major Harvey is one of the strongest friends of the command to-day. When quite a kid he showed great love for military, and at the age of sixteen years he was acting hospital steward with his father's regiment, which was the 7th Pennsylvania Reserves. On one occasion during the engagement, young Harvey with great coolness watched the action and a confederate shell fell close by him. He was afterwards appointed as a despatch bearer for General McClellan, and with several relays rode a distance of 108 miles in twenty-four hours time. For this great achievement which required daring and bravery, General McClellan complimented young Harvey through his father, Colonel E. B. Harvey. He is one of the consulting physicians to Mercy Hospital. For many years he has been a trustee of the State Hospital for the Insane at Danville, Pa., besides being a member of the following medical fraternities: Luzerne County Medical Society, the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania, the American Medical Association, and a fellow of the American Academy Association; he is also a very prominent Mason by high degree.

THE presentation of the beautiful bronze tablet by Major Irving A. Stearns, in memory of the officers and men of the 9th Infantry, who died in the service of their country during the Spanish-American War, is a most commendable gift. It shows the true and noble patriotism of an American gentleman and soldier. It is the first tablet of the kind erected in the State, and the action of Major Stearns should be emulated by other public spirited men throughout the commonwealth.

MAJOR WILLIAM F. RICHARDSON is busy preparing for issue the new knapsacks which is quite an improvement over the old pattern, one of the principal changes being that the great coat is rolled underneath.

THE new khaki uniform which is being made at the arsenal is almost a feather-weight material, although of strong texture. It is sure to give great comfort to the men at the coming encampment.

THE equipment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, when fully issued, will be equal to that of any troops in the world.

HON. CHARLES A. MINER

Hon. Chas. A. Miner is widely known throughout the State in business and political interests. He served three terms in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives and represented the State as honorary commissioner at the World's Exhibition at Vienna, Austria. He is one of the directors of the Wyoming and Peoples' National Bank of Wilkes-Barre. For many years he has been the president of the Board of Trustees of the Wilkes-Barre Armory Association and is looked upon by the "boys of the regiment" as their honorary Colonel.

COLONEL WILLIAM J. HARVEY

One of the prominent citizens and friends of the 9th Regiment is Colonel William J. Harvey, who served as a commissioned officer during the War of the Rebellion. He is a member of the first class of the Pennsylvania commandery of the Loyal Legions. During the Harrison presidential campaign he was one of the electors from Pennsylvania.

Colonel Harvey is also one of the executive committee of the Knights Templar Conclave, which takes place May 21st, in the city of Wilkes-Barre.

COLONEL G. MURRAY REYNOLDS

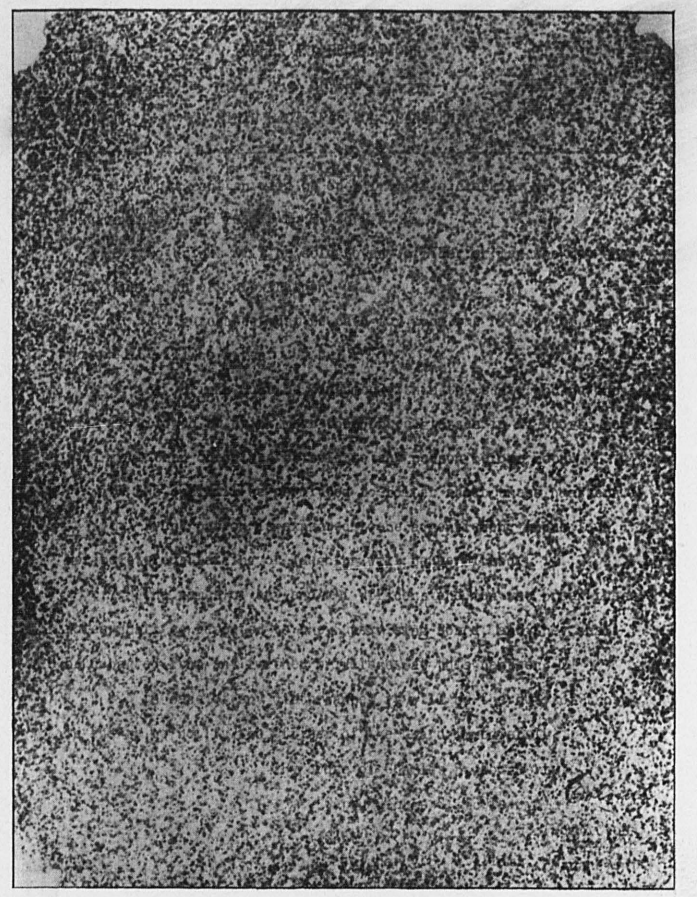
Colonel G. Murray Reynolds, First Commander of the 9th Regiment, was elected July 25, 1879. He continued in command of the regiment until 1885. During these years of service he brought the command to a high standard of efficiency, and on several occasions was officially complimented by his superiors for having a reliable regiment. He is held in high esteem by the officers and men of the 9th, his counsel being frequently sought in administrative affairs of the regiment.

CAPTAIN GEORGE W. ZEIGLER

Captain Geo. W. Zeigler was born in Lambertville, New Jersey, in 1855. He was educated in that place, and at quite an early age entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Trenton, New Jersey. He took charge of the telegraph office as well as the distribution of the company's coal for three divisions; namely, the Belvidere, New York and Amboy branches. After a long and faithful service of eleven years, he entered into the hotel business, seeming to have a natural inclination in that direction. In 1880 he purchased the Glennwood House at the Delaware Water Gap, one of the largest hotels in the country. In 1886 he disposed of the original hostelry to great advantage, and became the proprietor of the Luzerne House in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, and under his management it secured the largest commercial trade of any hotel in the Wyoming Valley. The Luzerne House was finally torn down to make improvements for a more modern structure, and Captain Ziegler then transferred his interests to the Exchange Hotel, directly opposite the old Luzerne House.

Captain Zeigler, for many years, was connected with the 9th Infantry as paymaster, with the rank of captain, and on one occasion he actually had command of the regimental details before the arrival of the field officers. He is one of the staunch friends of the organization and a very popular officer, and in his time has managed many successful financial events in the interest of the regiment. He is a member of the Elks and a master Mason.

CAPTAIN GEORGE W. ZEIGLER



The above illustration shows a regimental order posted on the bulletin board of the canteen, and was taken down in this condition by Captain Kenny, through whose courtesy we are enabled to give this illustration. Medical men have requested its loan several times for scientific lectures in order to demonstrate how the typhoid germ can be spread through insects.

1. This Canteen will be open from 11 o'clock A. M. to 12 o'clock noon, and from 5 P. M. to 9 P. M.

2. No drinks will be sold to any officer or man who may show the least sign of intoxication.

3. All purchases must be paid for upon receipt of same. No credit will be given.

4. All drinks must be consumed within the tent, and no one will be allowed to drink more than three glasses in 24 hours, nor will more than one glass be sold to any person before noon.

5. No one will be permitted to loiter about these quarters.

6. Every patron is expected to be a gentleman, and no loud or boisterous talking or laughing will be permitted.

7. The names of any and all officers and men who break these rules shall be reported to the Supervising Board, and they shall be debarred from any further privileges at this Canteen.

8. In case of any disturbance it will be the duty of those in charge to notify the Officers of the Guard immediately.

LIEUT. CALVIN PARDEE, JR.

Lieut. Calvin Pardee, Jr., was born September 5, 1871. He attended the following educational institutions: Cornwall Heights, N. Y.; Germantown Academy, Philadelphia, and Princeton College, New Jersey. He is the son of Calvin Pardee, one of the largest coal operators in the United States to-day, and holds the position of Assistant Superintendent of Calvin Pardee & Co., located at Lattimer, Pa.

Lieut. Pardee is one of the enthusiastic members of the 9th Regiment. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War he assisted greatly in the organization of Company "D," 7th Regiment Infantry, N. G. P., and was elected Lieutenant June 23, 1898. Subsequently this company was transferred on June 13, 1899, to Company "G," 9th Infantry, and the Company is regarded as one of the best drilled and highly disciplined companies in the State service.

CAPTAIN HARRY W. PIERCE.

Captain Harry W. Pierce, commanding Company "I," is one of the best known and popular officers in the regiment. He is a natural born soldier and is indefatigable in all that concerns the keeping of his company in an up-to-date position.

He was born in Plymouth, Pa., May 5, 1870. He was graduated from the public high school, and also received a preparatory college education. On December 12, 1888, he enlisted in Company "I" as one of the organizers. He re-enlisted January 3, 1892, and two months later was appointed Corporal, and as such re-enlisted January 3, 1895. The members of Company "I" recognizing his sterling worth and having a vacancy for Second Lieutenant tendered him the position unanimously. This was on April 10, 1895. On March 5, 1896, he received the single bar and finally on July 17, 1897, he was elected Captain of the Company. He commanded the Company throughout the Spanish-American War and was one of the few officers in the service that went through the campaign without sickness. He never relinquished command of his Company during that service for one day, and through his sanitary rule the Company returned without losing a man, Company "I" being the only company of the 9th Infantry returning without a loss. He is the senior Captain of the regiment, and it is fair to prophecy that he is one of the coming field officers of the regiment. By profession he is a florist and gardener and enjoys the confidence of the community.

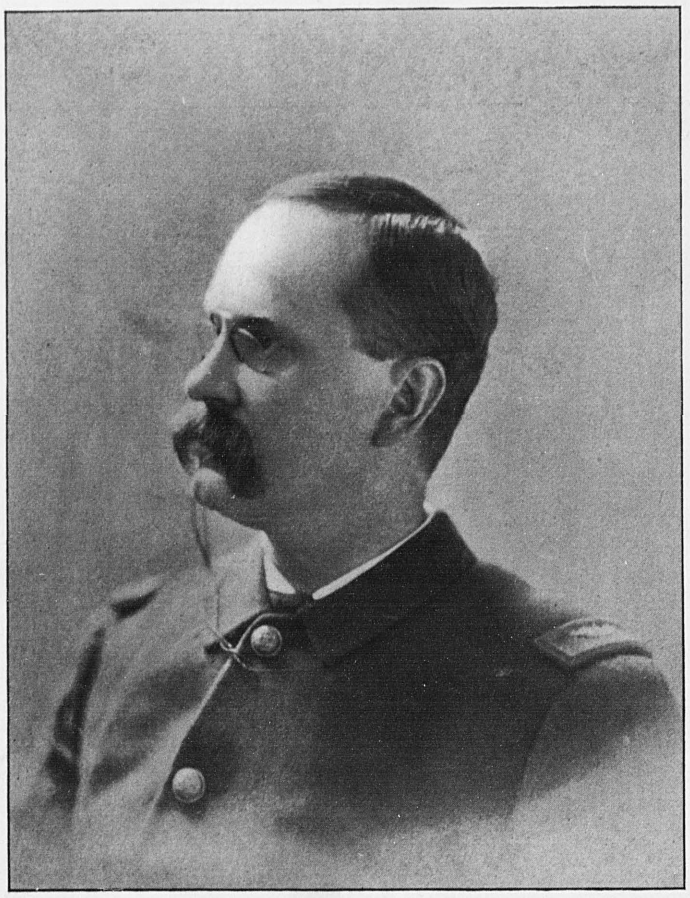
CONVALESCENT FEVER PATIENTS



COL. G. MURRAY REYNOLDS
FIRST COLONEL OF NINTH REGIMENT

COL. C. BOW DOUGHERTY.

Colonel C. Bow Dougherty, present commander of the 9th Infantry, and the senior Colonel of the 3d Brigade, has a most brilliant military record. His career as a citizen soldier stands out in pre-eminence, and as an officer of the United States Army he had few equals of his own rank. When quite a young man, in 1881, he enlisted as a private in Company "B," of the 9th Regiment. His executive ability was immediately recognized by Colonel Reynolds, who appointed him regimental clerk. This was on August 12, 1881. Being a musician of some ability, and the band at that time requiring a thorough reorganization, he was detailed to accomplish that task, July 27, 1882. After the thorough reorganization of the field music he was appointed Sergeant Major, May 9, 1883. He was reappointed November 17, 1884, and June 20, 1885. On April 28, 1887, he was appointed as inspector of rifle practice. It was mainly through his efforts that the marksmanship of the regiment was brought up to a high degree of proficiency. The three leading regiments in this department for many years were the 13th, 1st and 9th. Finally several changes took place in the "Field" of the 9th, and on November 3, 1892, he received the unanimous vote for the junior majority of the regiment.

He was elected Lieut. Colonel June 22, 1894, and finally succeeded Colonel Price in 1897, as Colonel of the 9th Infantry, and in this capacity he is serving the regiment with distinction.

At the breaking out of the Spanish-American War the 9th was one of the first commands to offer its services to the U. S. Government and Colonel Dougherty was immediately commissioned Colonel of the 9th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry.

His excellent training as a National Guardsman of Pennsylvania, was recognized by his superiors at once and when the regiment reached Lexington, Kentucky, he was assigned to command the 1st Brigade, which position he held for several months. Colonel Dougherty's experience, therefore, as a brigade commander in the U. S. service would certainly fit him for the commandership of our 3d Brigade in the event of a vacancy.

CAPTAIN ANDREW LEE.

Captain Lee was a student when the President issued a call for volunteers for the three months service. He enlisted April 18, 1861, at Lock Haven, Pa., as a private in Company "C," 11th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He was honorably discharged July 30, 1861, at Harrisburg, Pa., at expiration of time, and re-enlisted September 11, 1861, at Philadelphia, Pa., in Company "D," 8th Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, 2d Brigade, 1st Division C. C., and was promoted to a Corporal, January 1, 1864; Sergeant, September 1, 1864, and Lieutenant, December 20, 1864. During his first enlistment he took part in the battle of Falling Waters, and every battle and skirmish in which his regiment participated during his second enlistment, 135 in all, the most important of which were Yorktown, Fair Oaks, Malvern Hill, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Bristoe Station, Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, Trevillion Station, Hatchers Run, Five Forks, Saylors Creek, Farmville and Appomattox Court House, in July, 1865, his regiment was consolidated with the 16th Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry. He was honorably discharged August 11, 1865, at Harrisburg, Pa., by General Order of W. D., 199, having served his country faithfully and well in front for four years, two months and twelve days.

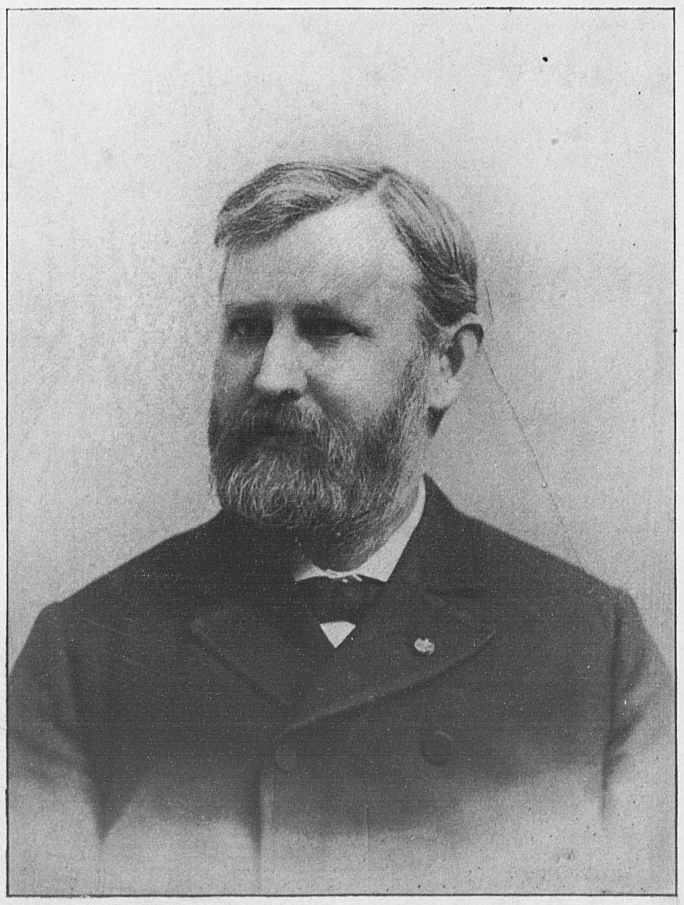
June 11, 1864, at the battle of Trevillion Station, our subject succeeded in getting upon the flank of the enemy, and after discovering their condition, he induced his regiment to charge, which resulted in a complete victory. December 16, 1864, at Greys Church, he led the company in a charge through a regiment of the enemy, and reopened communications with our infantry, also, after three unsuccessful attacks, he led his company at the Forks of the Meherin River, December 9, forced a passage and drove a regiment of Confederates two miles, for which conspicuous gallantry he received a Lieutenant's commission.

In the last campaign of the army of the Potomac, from March 31, to April 9, he commanded the company, and a part of the time a squadron, in which compaign the loss of his company (D) was 22 killed and wounded and 7 taken prisoners, out of 31 present for duty, the 31 losing a total of 34 horses.

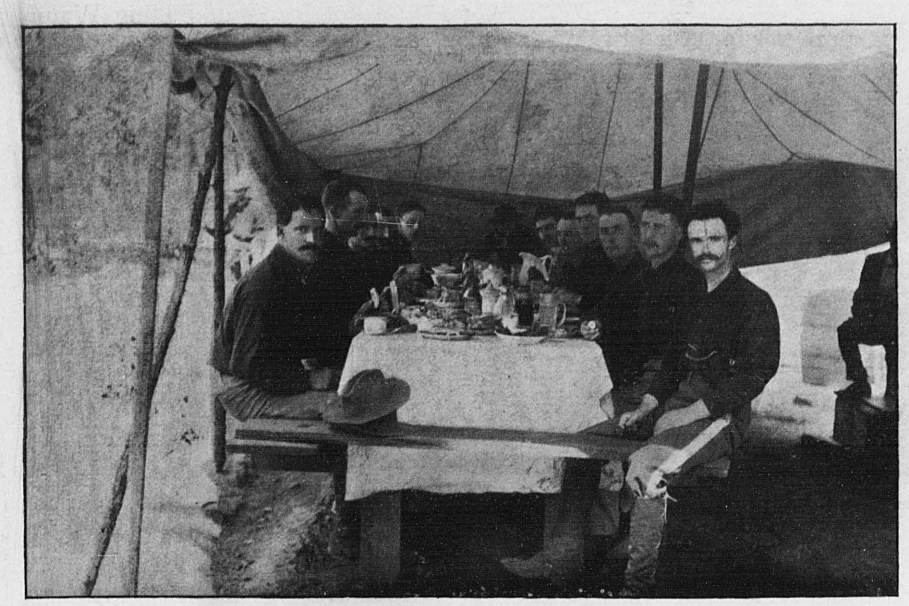
April 9, at Appomattox, he was placed in command of the Battalion, and led what proved to be the last charge in the army of the Potomac, during which a Confederate Colonel, Reuben Boston, of the 10th Virginia Cavalry, was killed by our subject in a hand to hand conflict, just before the flag of truce was delivered to them, he being the last of the enemy killed by the army of the Potomac.

When the Spanish-American war broke out our subject organized a company to enlist, but as Pennsylvania had furnished its quota, they were accepted as a part of the provisional guard of Pennsylvania, they were mustered in as Company "D," 7th Regiment Infantry, N. G. P., June 23, 1898. At the close of this brush with Spain they were transferred from the 7th Regiment to Company "G," 9th Regiment Infantry, N. G. P., in which regiment the company has maintained a high standing both at regiment headquarters, and in its native town, Hazleton.

Since returning from the war of 1861-65, he has been employed in the capacity of master mechanic and superintendent for several coal companies in Ohio, Virginia and Pennsylvania. At present he is employed by L. Schutte & Co., of Philadelphia, engineers and machinists, as their mechanical engineer.



MAJ. OLIN FRISBY HARVEY



FIRST BATTALION MESS

CAPTAIN W. G. WEAVER

Captain W. G. Weaver, Senior Assistant Surgeon of the 9th Infantry, is one of the best known military officers in the State. He was appointed Assistant Surgeon with the rank of First Lieutenant in June, 1890, appointed by Col. Keck, and commissioned by Governor Beaver. He served on the staff of Col. Keck for several years and was reappointed by Col. Price, who assumed command after Col. Keck resigned. Governor Pattison recommissioned him, and when Col. Price resigned as Colonel of the 9th Infantry, he was again appointed by Col. Dougherty, and was recommissioned by Governor Hastings.

His services as an assistant surgeon have been continuous since 1890. He served with the regiment at Homestead and at Lattimer, two of the greatest strikes known in the history of the State. When the call came for volunteers by Gov. Hastings, on April 27, 1898, he immediately responded and accompanied the command to Mt. Gretna, and there offered her services to the Volunteer Army of the United States, receiving a commission in the medical department with the rank of First Lieutenant, assigned to the 9th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. On the 6th of May, 1898, he had the honor of being the first officer mustered into the Federal service from the 9th Infantry, and preceded the others by five days.

His superior rank, for the time being, enabled him to pass upon every applicant for admission into the regiment. At Chickamauga, the surgeon major being detailed to the division hospital, he, as the Senior Assistant, acted in the capacity of surgeon major during the greater period of the War.

While serving in Lexington, Kentucky, he was stricken with appendicitis, and transferred to the Protestant Hospital at Lexington, from which place he was discharged from the service of the U. S. This was on September 1, 1898. After the muster out and the reorganization of the regiment, he was entitled by an act under the new law to the rank of Captain, which position he now holds.

Captain Weaver, before he was taken ill in the southern camps, treated more fever patients than perhaps any other surgeon in the regiment. To his skill many men of the 9th Regiment owe their lives.

In civil life, he is a member of the Board of Education, having served in that capacity for a period of twenty years at Wilkes-Barre. Professionally he has one of the largest practices in the county.

MAJOR W. S. STEWART

Major W. S. Stewart was born in Centre County, Pa., 1855. He was educated in the public schools and in the State Normal School. He also taught school for several years. In 1885 he graduated from the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, with high honors. He is a member of the Luzerne County State Medical societies and the Lehigh Valley Medical Society. He is the senior medical officer of the 9th Infantry, and during the Spanish-American War had charge of the medical corps of the brigade, and as such rendered valuable service in the fever camps of the South. He is a very enthusiastic National Guardsman in all its branches.

LIEUT. CHARLES H. MINER

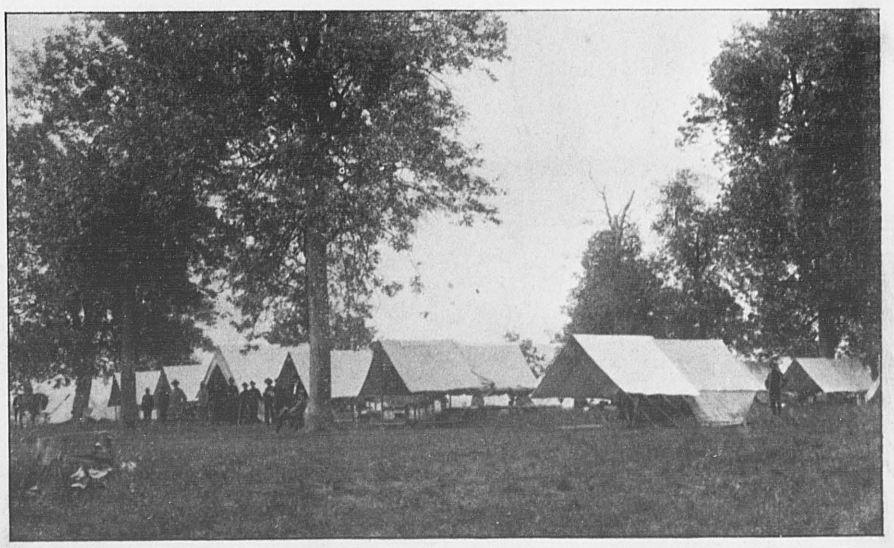
Lieut. Charles H. Miner is the son of the Hon. Charles C. Miner and a brother of Col. Asher Miner. He is the second assistant surgeon of the 9th Infantry, with the rank of First Lieutenant. He entered the U. S. Volunteer service on May 5, 1898, and served throughout the Spanish-American War, being mustered out with the regiment, October 29, 1898. While at Chickamauga he was attached to the 3d Division Ambulance Corps, and later to the Division Hospital. After the mustering out of the regiment, Major Mears, acting Division Surgeon U. S. Army, offered Lieut. Miner a position of Surgeon Major of the 3d Regiment Volunteer Engineers, but owing to his professional duties, he was unable to accept the position tendered. It was a high compliment paid Dr. Miner and showed that he was regarded by his superior officers as a surgeon of no mean ability. This regiment served in Cuba for some time. Lieut. Miner at the reorganization of the regiment was immediately reappointed as an assistant surgeon by Col. Dougherty.

LIEUT. JOHN A. KENNY

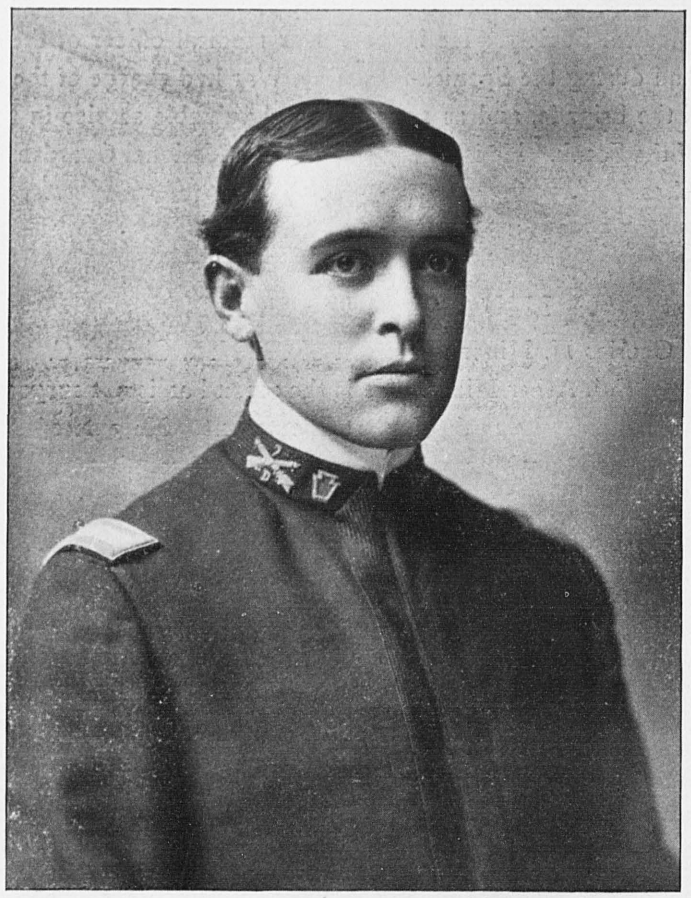
Lieutenant John A. Kenny, Company H, is a brother of Captain Kenny, and is well known throughout the country as one of its educational instructors. He graduated from the Mansfield State Normal and Military School, and at present occupies the position of principal of North Street Grammar School.

Lieutenant Kenny enlisted as a private in Company A of the 9th Infantry, at the age of seventeen, and served through the grades of corporal and sergeant. He was appointed sergeant-major on Colonel Price's staff, and was afterward reappointed by Colonel Dougherty.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, he was elected Second Lieutenant of Company B, May 12, 1898. Finally when the regiment was mustered into volunteer service of the U. S., Mr. Kenny was appointed Acting Regimental Commissary of Subsistance at Chickamauga, Georgia, June 11, 1898, and was promoted to First Lieutenant and Commissary. This appointment was made at Lexington, Kentucky, September 5, 1898. He was mustered out with the regiment at Wilkes-Barre on October 29, 1898. He also served in the regiment during the Homestead and Hazleton strikes.



FIRST BRIG. HDQRS.. LEXINGTON, KY., COL. C. BOW DOUGHERTY, COM.



LIEUTENANT CALVIN PARDEE, Jr.

Major Frank L. McKee

Major Frank L. McKee, Senior Major of the 9th Infantry, is one of the efficient and popular officers of the 3d Brigade. He was born in Warren Centre, Bradford County, Pa., May 20, 1860.

In early childhood, his father, who was a physician, removed to Owego, N. Y., where young Frank attended school for several years. In 1867 the family settled in Wyoming Valley, where he attended the common schools for several years and finally entered the Wyoming Seminary at Kingston, Pa., finishing the Scientific Preparatory course in 1875. He entered the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York City, from which he graduated with high honors in 1882.

His military career began as Captain of the Shawnee Blues in 1877. On December 12, 1888, he was elected 2d Lieutenant, Company "I," of the 9th Regiment. He was re-elected January 4, 1894. Received the unanimous vote on April 1, 1895, for the Captaincy, and on July 14, 1897, the line officers of the regiment elected him Major.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War he was commissioned Major of the 9th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and as such served throughout the campaign. He was regarded as one of the best field officers in the volunteer service, and through his many kind acts for the enlisted men, he became very much attached to them, and it is said that he is the coming commanding officer of the regiment. Major McKee was elected coroner of Luzerne County, 1895, and re-elected 1898.

Mr. John N. Conynghan

Mr. John N. Conynghan, one of the board of trustees of the Wilkes-Barre Armory Association, has long been identified with the interests of the 9th. He was one of the original promoters of the Armory, and is one of the prominent public spirited citizens who thoroughly appreciates the worth of the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

George Lockhart Darte

George Lockhart Darte, present United States Consul at Patras, Greece, was formerly a member of Company D, 9th Regiment, N. G. P. During the war with Spain he was the United States Consul at Martinique, West Indies, and did highly creditable service for his Government while at that post. Consul Darte is a native of Wyoming Valley, a graduate of Pennsylvania University. He is an active member of the Sons of Veterans and also Sons of the Revolution. He is a resident of Kingston, Pennsylvania.

SEASONABLE OUTINGS

Pleasant Seashore Trips via Philadelphia & Reading Route

Better considerably for "that tired feeling," so prevalent at this season of the year than a course of spring tonics, is a one or more days' outing on the Atlantic's strand breathing the invigorating saline air wafted up from the warm Gulf Stream. In former years Atlantic City was only a mid-summer holiday resort, frequented by those who were willing to put up with the many discomforts, for the healthful benefits derived from a seashore sojourn, but at the present time Atlantic City stands pre-eminent as an all-the-year-round resort, with magnificent new hotels, with steam heat and all the modern luxurious appointments for comfort and pleasure equal to the finest of metropolitan hostelries.

The magnificent sun parlors attached to the larger hotels and the latest fad, the comfortable rolling chairs on the boardwalk make this resort especially applicable to invalids. The greatest change from former times is in the getting there, formerly slow, uncomfortable trains were used, but now the swift, safe and luxurious express trains of the Philadelphia & Reading route (Atlantic City R. R.) leave Chestnut Street and South Street Ferries, Philadelphia, at convenient hours and make rapid trips to the seashore, in mid-summer some trains traversing the entire distance from the Delaware to the sea in less than an hour. Through tickets are sold and baggage checked through from all the principal ticket stations of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway and its connecting lines.
